Samford Celebrates Another Extraordinary Year

Greetings from the campus of Samford University.

The past year was another extraordinary one in Samford's history. In a time of an uncertain global economy, Samford has achieved record enrollments, record annual giving and a national reputation that reflects the commitment of our trustees, faculty and staff to provide the rigorous academic programs and collegiate experiences that our students and their parents expect.

In these pages, you will find just some of the many highlights from the 2010–11 academic year and read stories that reflect the Samford mission. We also recognize the thousands of individuals, churches, corporations, foundations and organizations who provided financial support to make those highlights possible. It would be impossible to adequately demonstrate the importance of those gifts, which provide about one-third of Samford's annual operating revenues. Without them, our work together would be impossible.

Each week, I share a short story via email with the Samford community that reflects how we are fulfilling the Samford mission. Why? Because the process of fulfilling it never ends. There are thousands of stories that reflect that mission, and the world is better for it.

President

New Records Highlight 2010–11 Academic, Fiscal Year

Samford University achieved several records during the 2010–11 academic and fiscal year, including record enrollments and near-record giving. It also was the second year for Samford to conduct an in-depth assessment of goals and objectives tied to a multiyear, university-wide strategic plan.

There are 43 strategies that support the objectives, according to Sarah C. Latham, Samford's vice president for operations and planning. Latham coordinated the strategic planning process and leads the group that oversees the assessment process for Samford President Andrew Westmoreland.

Latham noted that many strategies span more than one objective, and some achievements may fit more than one goal or strategy. All support the university's mission. These key accomplishments are for the period July 1, 2010, to June 30, 2011.

Samford's mission

The mission of Samford University is to nurture persons in their development of intellect, creativity, faith and personhood. As a Christian university, the community fosters academic, career and ethical competency while encouraging social and civic responsibility and service to others.

Create and sustain an environment for learning and professional development.

- ✦ A new master of science in education degree program was launched, designed to fill a critical need for secondary education teachers. The accelerated program trains teachers for grades 6–12 in seven areas: English/language arts, general science, history, mathematics, social science and Spanish.
- ✦ Samford implemented plans for a new master of music education degree [M.M.E.] focused on National Board Certification preparation and the unique needs of in-service music specialists.
- ✦ The first group of graduates in Ida V. Moffett School of Nursing's accelerated second-degree program graduated. The cohort entered the 15-month program in August 2009 already prepared with baccalaureate degrees in a field other than nursing.
- ✦ The educational specialist graduate program was changed to an Ed.S. in instructional leadership to reflect changes in the Alabama State Department of Education's revised standards for certification.
- ✦ A new major in foods and nutrition was approved. It is designed to help students plan a degree program based on career goals other than becoming a registered dietitian.
- ✦ A new academic minor in worship leadership was approved. The program is designed for students who want to be worship leaders, pastoral musicians or better worshipers in the church.
- ✦ A new academic program—global studies in history, language and culture—was approved as a humanities-based, interdisciplinary major. The program provides students the tools to study, encounter and engage with people, cultures and language through history and in the ever-changing present.
- ✦ Samford After Sundown, a community education program for professional and personal development, offered more than 50 courses in arts and humanities, fitness and recreation, languages, photography, writing and other topics. New courses included basic technical drawing, advanced photography, fishes and aquatic biology, open art studio, chess, and beginning improvisation and comedy.

- ▶ The Alabama Supreme Court and the Alabama Court of Civil Appeals heard oral arguments at Samford in October with about 1,000 area high school and college students attending the session.
- ▶ Varsity debaters Dan Bagwell and Logan Gramzinski set a school record for national rankings in the national coaches' poll and contributed to a similar accolade for the overall debate program. Bagwell and Gramzinski were ranked the 17th-best team in the nation, and Samford the 13th-best overall debate school. Bagwell and Gramzinski also reached the Sweet 16 in the national debate tournament, the highest finish in the tournament for a Samford team in 25 years.
- ▶ The Samford University Ethics Bowl team qualified for the national tournament on the basis of its fifth-place finish at the regional tournament in November.
- ▶ Four Brock School of Business M.B.A. students were selected in a national case-writing competition sponsored by Baylor University and hosted by the U.S. Association of Small Business and Entrepreneurship, the largest independent, professional academic organization in the world focused on advancing entrepreneurship.

- ▶ Samford placed 26 student-athletes on the Southern Conference's fall 2010 Academic All-Conference team and led all Southern Conference schools with 24 representatives on the winter 2011 Academic All-Conference Team.
- ▶ Two Cumberland School of Law students, Sims Rhyne and Wes Hill, won the annual American Bar Association Student Tax Challenge by beating 94 other teams in the national competition.
- ▶ Mock trial teams from Cumberland School of Law finished first and second in the regional student trial advocacy competition sponsored by the American Association for Justice.
- ▶ All 28 members of the December 2010 bachelor of science in nursing graduating class passed the National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses, which measures competencies needed to perform safely and effectively as a newly licensed nurse. A 100 percent pass rate on the examination developed by the National Council of State Boards of Nursing is uncommon.
- ▶ Shannon Cornman O'Guin, a Cumberland School of Law student, took second place in the National Top Gun Mock Trial competition.
- ▶ Eight students in McWhorter School of Pharmacy earned national leadership training certificates from the American Pharmacists Association Academy of Student Pharmacists.
- ▶ Pharmacy graduate Ronnie Opolka was elected president of the 1,800-member Alabama Pharmacy Association.
- ▶ Samford University's 17 athletics teams posted an average score of 989 of 1,000 in the NCAA's Division I Multi-Year Academic Progress Rate report. Seven Samford University teams received public recognition awards for the past academic year from the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The NCAA presented its Division I Head Coach Academic Progress Rates Portfolio, including baseball, football, men's and women's basketball, and women's indoor and outdoor track and field. Samford's head coaches in the six sports chosen for the portfolio each received high scores. Each Samford coach has an average score well above the national average for their respective sport.
- ▶ The Career Development Center program was strengthened with expanded and renovated physical space and the addition of new staff.

Goal 2

- David Johnson and Jennifer Layton, biological and environmental sciences, received more than $19,000 from British Petroleum [BP] to study the impact of the Deepwater Horizon incident and its associated response on the environment and public health in the Gulf of Mexico. Samford was one of 22 four-year universities in Alabama that received grant money for research on the present conditions in the gulf and future effects from the major environmental event. Dr. Johnson is researching marine ciliates in oil-spill contaminated waters, while Dr. Layton is researching the genetic implications of relocating loggerhead sea turtle eggs from the coastline.
- Exercise science and sports medicine students Kara Hardin and Derrick Thomas earned first place for undergraduate research at the American College of Sports Medicine annual meeting.
- Samford’s Healthcare Ethics and Law Institute examined “Eliminating Health-care Delivery Disparities: An Ethical Quagmire?” during its 10th annual conference in April.
- Eric Fournier, geography, presented the inaugural James O. Wheeler Memorial Lecture at the University of Georgia.

Nurture a vibrant community of Christian faith and service.

- ▶ The School of the Arts hosted the Refresh workshop in July for church musicians to explore current developments in resources, methods and thought.
- ▶ Students in a summer missiology course applied their classroom study to real-world needs during a working, three-day mission trip to rural central Alabama.
- ▶ Samford hosted a church media workshop for more than 70 participants cosponsored by the university's Department of Journalism and Mass Communication and the Office of Marketing and Communication. The one-day training event was designed for small- and medium-sized churches that need basic help with writing, website, advertising, social media, public relations, event planning and television/radio production.
- ▶ The Lay Academy of Theology, sponsored by Beeson Divinity School, offered several evening courses and other opportunities for those interested in various aspects of faith exploration.
- ▶ Samford sponsored the seventh annual university hymn sing in September.
- ▶ A series of lectures by Samford professors addressing the Big Questions in Science and Religion was presented at Birmingham's Independent Presbyterian Church through the new Center for Science and Religion.
- ▶ Twenty-five incoming freshmen participated in a Samford Summer Adventure.
- ▶ Ida V. Moffett School of Nursing, in conjunction with United Cerebral Palsy [UCP] of Greater Birmingham, hosted its second mobile health clinic for children and adults with developmental disabilities. The nursing school also received the 2011 Life Without Limits Outstanding Program Partner Award from UCP.
- ▶ Two hundred students and employees shared their time, hearts and energy with the greater Birmingham community during Samford Gives Back Day in December, and at least 600 volunteered in the service day in the spring. Samford also participated for the eighth consecutive year in the annual Habitat for Humanity Home for the Holidays project.

- ▶ Samford's Resource Center for Pastoral Excellence sponsored Hinge Moments: Swinging Toward Vital Ministry, a one-day seminar to provide practical resources that help clergy and congregations address strategic occasions in proactive and creative ways.

Beeson Divinity School hosted its 23rd annual Pastors School in July.

- ▶ Samford's seventh annual Old Howard 100 Bike Ride set a new participation record as 250 cyclists rode through three counties in Alabama's historic Black Belt.
- ▶ Among major convocation speakers during the year were Albert Reyes, president, Buckner International; David Garrard, Christian magician and minister; missionaries Paul and Rebecca Kim; Bryant Wright, Southern Baptist Convention president; George T. French, Miles College president; Ronnie Floyd, pastor, First Baptist Church, Springdale, Ark.; Albert Mohler, president, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary; and Billy Kim, former president, Baptist World Alliance.

- ▶ Following the devastating tornadoes on April 27:
  - ▶ More than 300 students and employees were involved in relief work during the first full weekend of recovery efforts. Other support continues. Information on recovery opportunities was updated daily at www.samford.edu.
  - ▶ A community prayer service was held in Reid Chapel.
  - ▶ Students and faculty in Ida V. Moffett School of Nursing provided additional support for area hospitals that were helping those injured in the storms.
  - ▶ The university collected items to be distributed to storm victims.
  - ▶ A temporary shelter for up to 500 Red Cross relief workers was set up in Bashinsky Field House and F. Page Seibert Hall.
  - ▶ Access to Lucille Stewart Beeson Law Library was provided for University of Alabama law students.
- ▶ Although UA shut down regular operations, law students still completed final exams for the spring semester.
- ▶ A weekend football camp originally scheduled for Tuscaloosa was relocated to Seibert Stadium.
- ▶ Temporary shelter was provided on campus for at least one student family whose home was destroyed. The family had no renter's insurance.
- ▶ A sold-out Avett Brothers concert on campus turned into a benefit for storm victims with attendees bringing items to be distributed and a live auction that included a guitar signed by the popular group.
- ▶ Families of approximately 225 high school students visiting the campus for a preview day brought clothing, bottled water and cash donations for storm victims.
- ▶ Full-time employees were granted use of two days for volunteer work through June 30 that would not count against vacation time.

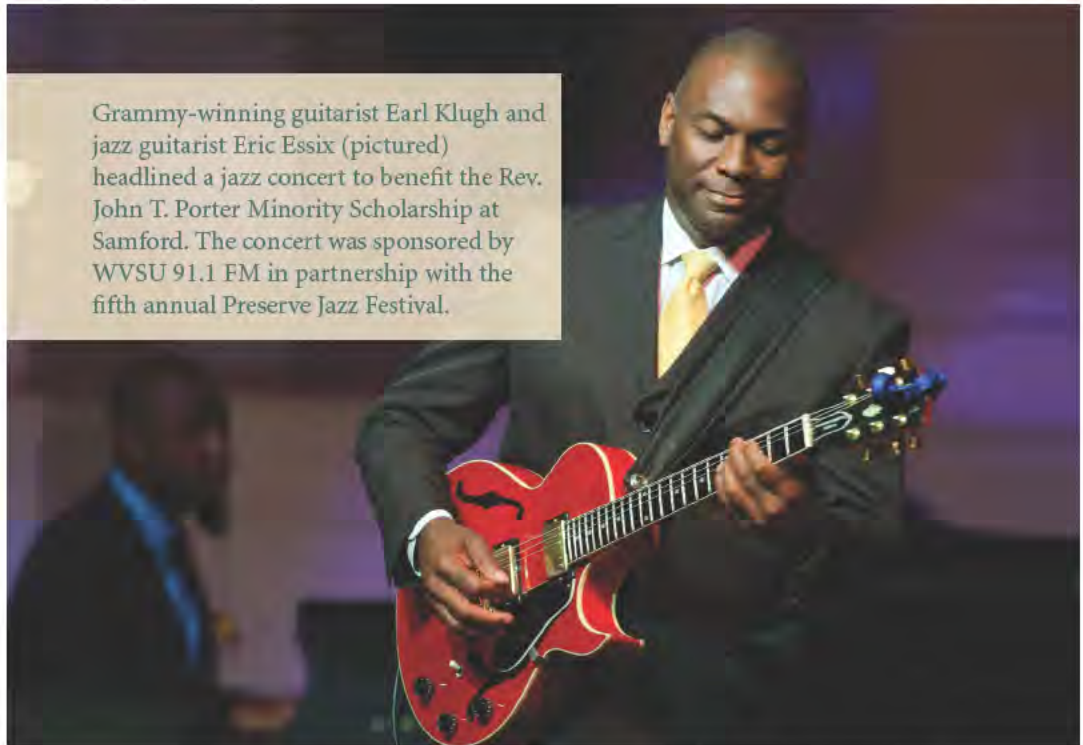

Hundreds of Samford University students, employees and alumni volunteered with relief efforts following the devastating storms that hit Alabama in the spring.

Goal 5

Promote intercultural and international understanding.

- ▶ The number of Samford students studying abroad increased by 23 percent over the previous academic year.
- ▶ Samford offers a critical languages program with elementary and intermediate courses in Arabic, Chinese, Hindi, Italian, Japanese, Portuguese and Russian.
- ▶ Ravi Howard, author of the novel Like Trees, Walking, spoke at Samford as part of the Samford Writers Series. Howard's award-winning book is a fictionalized account of a true story, the 1981 lynching of a black teenager in Mobile, Ala.
- ▶ A group of Japanese pharmacy students and professors explored the workings of American clinical pharmacy during a two-week program sponsored by McWhorter School of Pharmacy.
- ▶ Maria Christina Zucchi, a justice of the São Paulo State Supreme Court in Brazil, served as Distinguished International Scholar at Cumberland School of Law.
- ▶ Trustees approved the National Pan-Hellenic Council [NPHC] of Samford University as an official student organization. NPHC is the governing body for historically black sororities and fraternities. Samford has three active organizations, and a fourth anticipated reactivating.
- ▶ The Student Dietetic Association sponsored an on-campus farmers' market to highlight local farming and healthy nutrition.
- ▶ Samford University's Black Student Union hosted a Unity Prayer Night for the campus community.

Grammy-winning guitarist Earl Klugh and jazz guitarist Eric Essix (pictured) headlined a jazz concert to benefit the Rev. John T. Porter Minority Scholarship at Samford. The concert was sponsored by WVSU 91.1 FM in partnership with the fifth annual Preserve Jazz Festival.

- ▶ The sociology department hosted a traveling museum to education visitors on modern-day slavery.
- ▶ Samford's third annual diversity luncheon, hosted by the Black Student Union and the Samford Alumni Association, celebrated scholarship, courage and reconciliation.
- ▶ Serving as a Fulbright Scholar in Hong Kong during the spring semester, Rosemary M. Fisk, arts and sciences associate dean, was part of a team charged with helping the city's seven public universities move from a three-year to a four-year curriculum.
- ▶ The annual Institute of Genealogy and Historical Research enrolled 276 students from 39 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.
- ▶ David Chapman, arts and sciences dean, and Tatyana Karaman, associate vice president for decision support and financial strategy, met with officials from six Chinese universities during a special trip to develop Samford's English as a Second Language program.

Goal 6

Practice stewardship to ensure resources are strong for present and future generations.

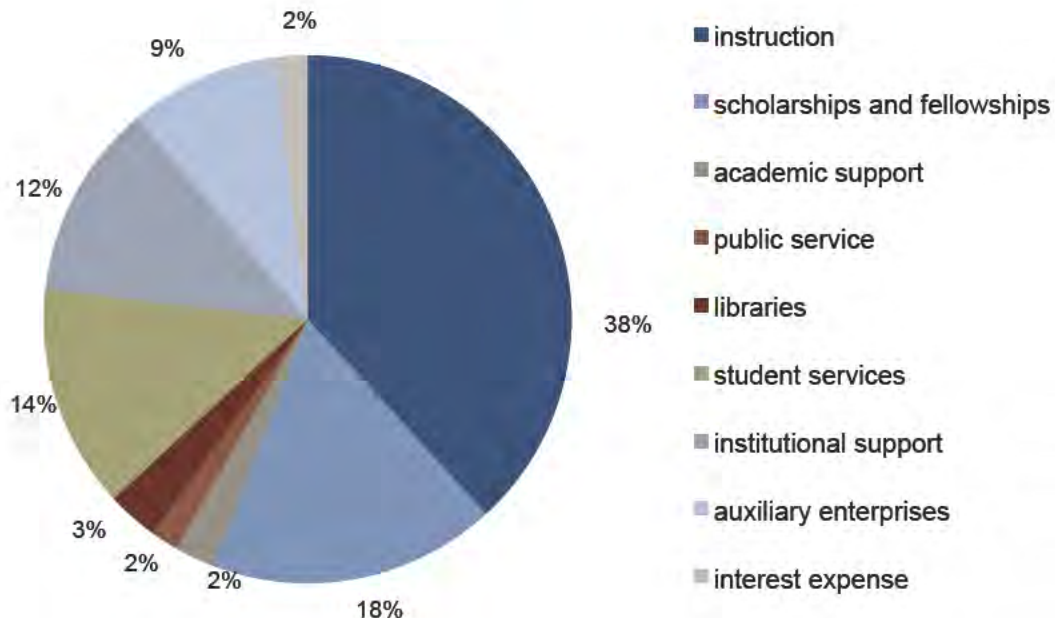

Samford University and community partners completed Shades Creek enhancement project. For almost a year, Samford and 12 partners planned the collaborative endeavor to enhance and improve the quality of a 1,200-foot-long portion of Shades Creek along Lakeshore Drive.

- ▶ The university received the proceeds from a multimillion-dollar trust following the death of Virginia Samford Donovan in January. The trust was established in 1974 by the late Frank Park Samford, Jr. and had increased more than sixfold. (see page 14)
- ▶ Samford received two multimillion-dollar distributions from the estates of sisters Elinor Ellosteine Wright, a 1934 graduate, and Ruth Alice Wright, a 1937 graduate, both of whom died in November 2009.
- ▶ The university completed the 2011 fiscal year with a positive net operating margin of $2.2 million and had a positive cash flow for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2011.
- ▶ Samford received $35,333,832 in annual philanthropic support.
- ▶ Samford's endowment had a return of 14.2 percent and ended the fiscal year with a market value of $246 million.
- ▶ Samford received $5 million in gifts from Alabama Baptists, much of which was returned to students in the form of financial aid.
- ▶ Michael J. and Mary Anne Freeman of Birmingham provided significant underwriting for the 2010–11 season of Samford's theatre and dance series.
- ▶ Former governor Mike Huckabee of Arkansas was guest speaker for a gala hosted by the Samford University Auxiliary that raised more than $100,000 for the Leslie Parkman Roe Scholarship for Missionary Dependents. Dr. Roe, a Samford graduate whose missionary parents served in the Philippines during her college days, is now a physician in Virginia.
- ▶ Ida V. Moffett School of Nursing received a federal grant designed to help ease a national shortage of nursing educators. The $655,000 grant, awarded by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Health Resources and Services Administration, provides loans for graduate and doctoral students pursuing an advanced degree with the intent to serve as faculty in a nursing school.
- ▶ Samford was honored with a 2010 Industry Leader Award by the National Safety Council for achieving the best safety performance within its industry in 2009. Samford is one of 81 companies honored nationally and the only university to receive the award.
- ▶ Samford celebrated Philanthropy Difference Day with two events designed to make students aware of the impact that donors have on their lives.
- ▶ Samford awarded more than $30 million in student financial aid.

Kley Sippel

When Andrew Toney was a high school student in suburban Memphis, Tenn., financial concerns were a major consideration in his college choice. He wanted to attend Samford University, but it wasn't until he received his financial aid package that he was able to "really look" at Samford.

It was the same struggle for Kley Sippel as a high school senior in South Carolina. He calls his college choice "one of the biggest faith struggles in his life" because of financial concerns. His scholarships and grants from Samford helped solidify this decision.

New Scholarship Endowment

by Philip Poole

For both young men, that financial aid included a Presidential Scholarship and an invitation to be part of the first cohort in the new University Fellows honors program. At the time, the university had to limit the number of presidential scholarships because of funding, so they were part of a very small group.

Now, because of a generous estate gift from the late Frank Park Samford, Jr., and his late wife, Virginia Samford Donovan, future students like Toney and Sippel will have an even better opportunity to receive a presidential scholarship to help with their Samford education.

In March 2011, the university received proceeds from a multimillion-dollar trust following Mrs. Donovan's death in January. Her late husband, Frank, had established the charitable remainder trust in 1974 with a $2 million gift. Over the next 36 years, the trust paid 6 percent annually to Mr. and Mrs. Samford. The remainder that was given to Samford earlier this year represented in excess of a sixfold increase from the original investment, according to university officials.

The university's board of trustees voted in April to use the trust as endowment for the presidential scholars program, which has been renamed the Virginia and Frank Samford, Jr. Presidential Scholarships. The trust is providing more than $230,000 in scholarships for the 2011-12 academic year and is expected to provide more than that annually in the future, according to W. Randall Pittman, Samford's vice president for advancement.

The presidential scholars program had existed for decades, but this is the first endowment to be used specifically for that program, Pittman said. The endowment will replace general operating budget funds that had been used for the scholarships. Those funds can now be reallocated to other academic needs, he added.

Presidential scholarships recognize outstanding academic performance in a rigorous college preparatory curriculum, high standardized test scores, and demonstrated leadership in high school, church and the community. Individual awards range from about $7,000 to full tuition.

It was that kind of award that helped Sippel decide on Samford. "Without that scholarship, the other aid I received would not have been sufficient," he said. And, that aid has made him more appreciative of Samford donors, even though he never had the opportunity to meet Mr. Samford or Mrs. Donovan personally. It even has changed his own attitude about giving back to his alma mater.

"Before I came to Samford, I saw benefactors as nothing more than people who wrote checks to keep the school going. Now that I've met so many of them, I know they are people who believe in the university and its students, and really want to invest in students' lives," Sippel said.

After graduation, he hopes to return the favor. "I had no intention of giving back to Samford, but after seeing how others have invested in my education, I hope to begin giving back sooner rather than later."

Toney said he is "grateful and thankful" for donors like the Samfords, because they underscore his Samford experiences. "I am grateful for their support of the interaction of Christian faith and the liberal arts, and that those two things are not exclusive of one another. Their gift is a powerful statement that they were committed to it," he said.

For senior Caroline Noland, the presidential scholarship and University Fellows invitation affirmed an unexpected choice to attend Samford. As a high school student in South Carolina, she said she had no desire to attend college "so far away" in Alabama. But, her dad planned a surprise visit to Samford's campus, and Noland said she "really fell in love with it."

All three students—Toney, Sippel and Noland—talk positively about their Samford experiences and being part of the first cohort of University Fellows. All three say the personal relationships they were able to develop with faculty and fellow students are integral to their Samford education.

Noland said the discussion-driven classes help her apply what she was reading and hearing to all aspects of life. "It allows me to get to know my fellow students and get to see their hearts a lot better," she explained. "For instance, if we decide we need to better educate children, we talk through how we would live that out."

After graduation, Noland hopes to go to Pakistan to do missions and development work for about two years before pursuing graduate studies. Her long-term goal is to live in a developing country "sharing God's love with the poor."

Toney has similar interests in social justice and reconciliation, and is considering some combination of seminary and law school after graduating from Samford. His experiences as both a University Fellow and preministerial scholar helped shape that decision.

"I am looking for places that will push and challenge me academically and spiritually, just as I found here at Samford," Toney said.

It is that type of experience that the Virginia and Frank Samford, Jr. Presidential Scholarships program will continue to provide in the future, Pittman noted. "This fund will ensure that we always have a source to provide scholarships to some of our most deserving and hard-working students." ■

Beyond

Dylan Scott examines the renovated Jane Slaughter Hardenbergh Memorial Organ.

Jane Slaughter Hardenbergh began her musical journey as an organist at Independent Presbyterian Church in Birmingham under the tutelage of a renowned instructor, Minnie McNeill Carr. She studied organ through her college years and beyond, and the instrument became an important part of her life.

Born in Virginia, she grew up in Birmingham, where her father was pastor of First Baptist Church. She earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Richmond in 1951 and master's degree in sacred music from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1953.

Hardenbergh, then Jane Slaughter, joined the music faculty of Samford University in 1956, serving for three years. There, at a relatively young age, she took on an assignment that would have lasting influence down through the years. She was asked to design the organ for the chapel Samford was building on its new Shades Valley campus. She chose the Aeolian-Skinner Company of Boston, Mass., to construct the instrument.

As Samford approached the 50th anniversary of the Reid Chapel organ, generous contributions in her memory, including a major gift from her family in late 2010, made possible the complete renovation of the instrument. During the original construction, budget constraints forced the omission of several elements. Restoring these lost voices would reclaim the original scope Jane Hardenbergh had envisioned. Earlier this year, this renovation was completed by Quimby Pipe Organ Company.

This fall, Samford's magnificent instrument was dedicated to the memory of the music professor who designed it half a century ago: the Jane Slaughter Hardenbergh Memorial Organ. Appropriately, some of the new ranks in the Reid Chapel organ were rescued from vintage Skinner organs, including the triangle flute rank from the original Skinner instrument at Independent Presbyterian Church, where Jane and Firmon had their first organ lessons.

"She would enjoy the new sound of the instrument," said Firmon.

Three events in Reid Chapel marked the dedication celebration. On Sept. 18, university organist James Dorroh,

'She would enjoy the new sound of the instrument.'

Slaughter left Samford in 1959 to marry Dr. Firmon Hardenbergh, whom she met while both were organ students at Independent Presbyterian. The Hardenberghs moved to Cambridge, Mass., where Firmon completed his medical residency in ophthalmology at Harvard University. Later, the family moved to Boulder, Colo., where Firmon established a private practice.

Jane had completed classroom requirements for a doctoral degree at Union Theological Seminary in the late 1950s, but deferred finishing the degree to raise the Hardenberghs' four children. While residing in Boulder, she returned to her doctoral studies and completed her doctor of musical arts at the University of Colorado in 1983.

"She chose to complete all the course work again to get all the new information that had appeared in her field since she first did class work," said Firmon. She also taught as an adjunct professor at Colorado. In 1989, Firmon was named chief ophthalmologist in Harvard's university health services, and the family returned to Cambridge. They moved back to Birmingham in 2000.

Jane performed in churches and gave concerts all through her years in Boulder and Cambridge, and continued to fill in at churches in the Birmingham area. She served Mountain Brook Presbyterian as interim organist for three years, and inspired the church to refurbish and expand its organ. She died at the age of 79 in 2009.

Over the years, the organ that Jane initiated at Samford left an indelible impression on the university community. "Here, we have gathered to raise our voices in praise, seek consolation during troubled times and mark the great celebrations of life," said Samford School of the Arts dean Joseph Hopkins.

music major Joshua Bullock, alumnus Charles Kennedy '92 and lecturer Dan Lawhon presented a program. Dean Hopkins also talked about the contributions of late faculty members H. E. "Ted" Tibbs and Betty Sue Shepherd to teaching organ students at Samford.

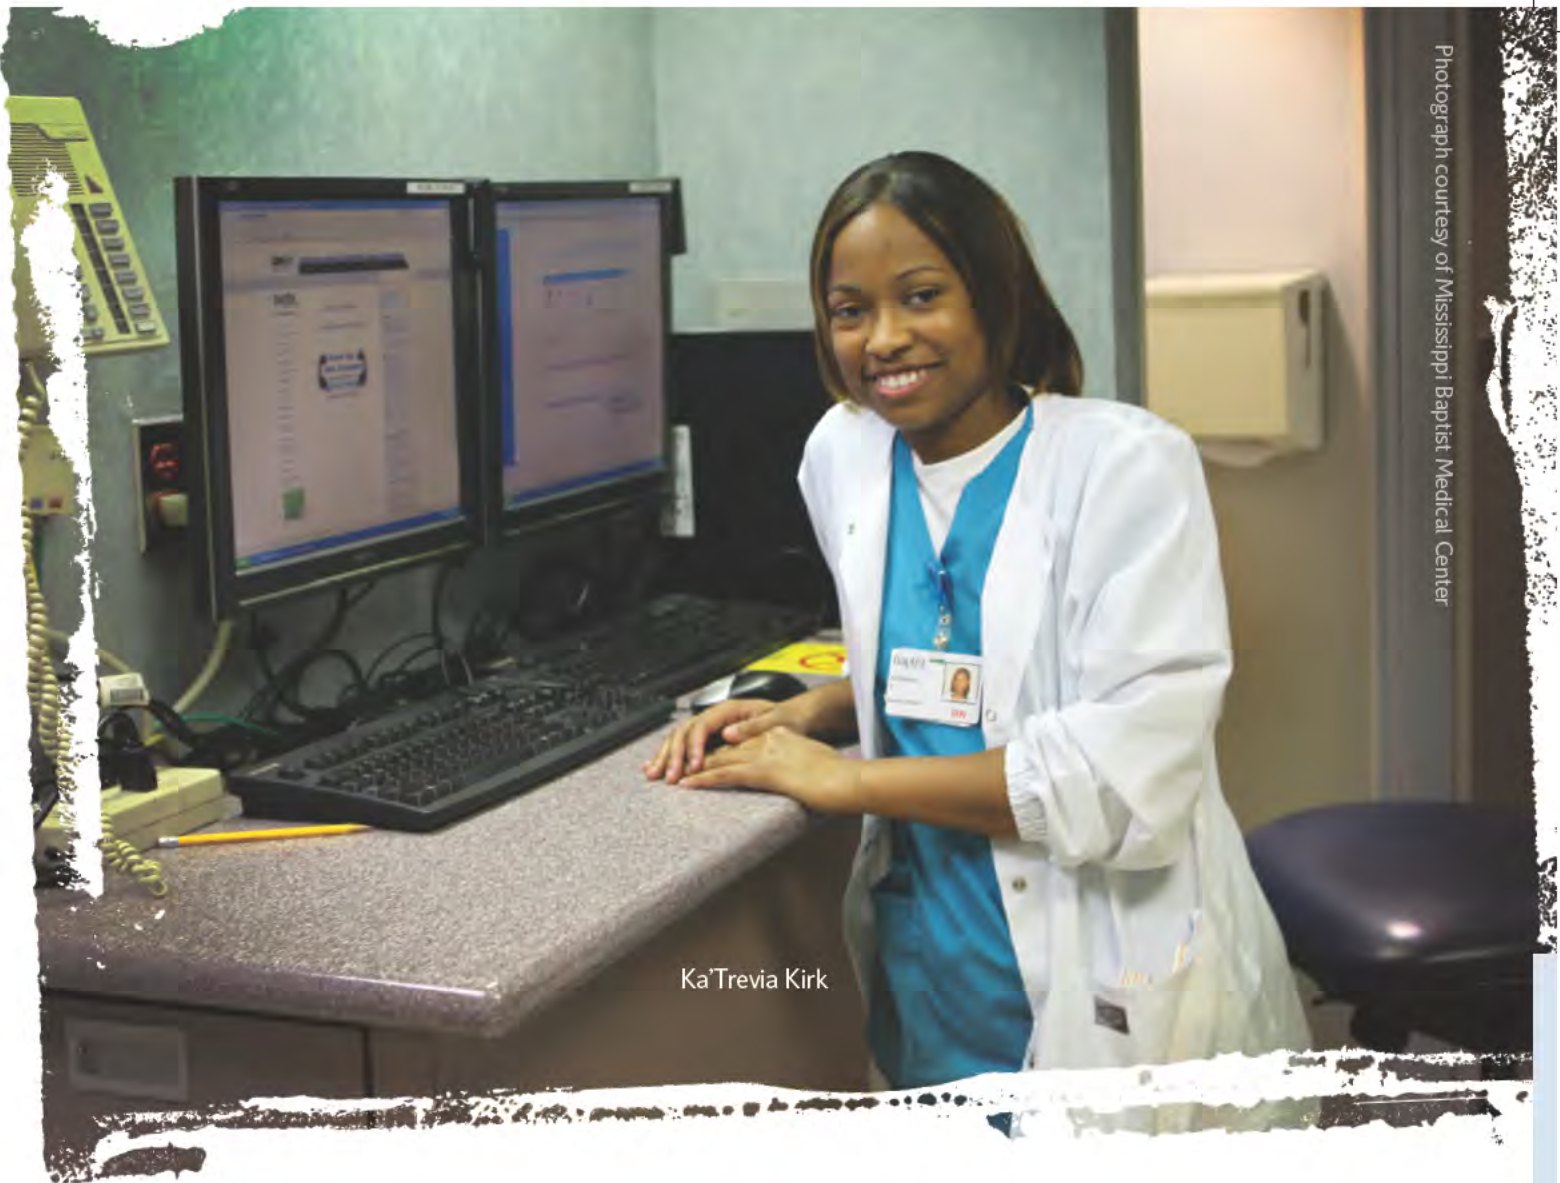

On Oct. 22, noted organist and Juilliard School of Music professor Paul Jacobs led a master class cosponsored with the Birmingham chapter of the American Guild of Organists. On Oct. 23, Jacobs was featured in a dedicatory concert.

"Her music touched congregations across this community and beyond," said Hopkins of Hardenbergh's work. "She helped build a foundation for the rich tradition of organ performance and worship that still thrives on the Samford campus. Now, and for generations to come, this organ will announce marriages, inspire singing and attract excellent musicians to Samford University." ■

Ka'Trevia Kirk

Mississippian Benefits from Accelerated Nursing Degree Program

by Katie Stripling

When Ka'Trevia Kirk decided she wanted to be a nurse, she sought to achieve her goal as quickly as possible. She found that program at Samford University and was part of the inaugural class in a special accelerated second-degree program in nursing.

The inaugural class in Samford's Ida V. Moffett School of Nursing accelerated second-degree program, including Kirk, graduated in December 2010. The cohort began the rigorous 15-month program, designed for individuals who hold a bachelor's degree in a field other than nursing, in August 2009.

Kirk, who is from Jackson, Miss., chose Samford's program not only because it combines a Christian mission with a reputation for academic excellence, but also because the program recognized her previous experiences and degree as an asset.

"Accelerated programs are important because they produce uniquely well-rounded nurses," Kirk said. "The students in the program possess diverse backgrounds—we not only know nursing, but some of us know sociology, economics, biochemistry and more."

Alumni of the program have had great success. The inaugural class achieved a 100 percent pass rate on the national licensure examination, the NCLEX-RN, and all graduates have obtained employment or have opted to pursue an advanced degree.

'The program completely prepared me to immediately begin working as a nurse.'

"The program completely prepared me to immediately begin working as a nurse. I often get asked by my patients where I received my nursing training because they say my way of nursing is distinguishable from others," said Kirk, who is a registered nurse on the medical surgical unit at Mississippi Baptist Medical Center in Jackson. She also is enrolled in the Family Nurse Practitioner program at the University of Mississippi Medical Center. Within six months of being hired, Kirk was promoted to a charge nurse and as a preceptor for nursing students.

Graduates repeatedly attributed their success to the dedicated faculty who teach students exceptional skills and what it truly means to be a nurse.

Paige Taylor '10 summed up her experience in the program saying, "Not only has Samford educated me on how to be a registered nurse, but it has also molded my attitudes and beliefs as to what is truly required in this profession. We look beyond what defines a patient socially, religiously or economically and focus on caring for the patient. We practice with compassion, and respect and advocate for our patients' health, safety and rights."

The accelerated second-degree program continues to grow in size and reputation, according to program director Janet Alexander. It has attracted students from more than 20 states. The third cohort that began in August 2011 includes 36 students, 50 percent of whom are considered underrepresented in the field of nursing. Underrepresented groups include males and ethnic minorities, Alexander said. ■

AFROTC Scholarship Honors U.S. Victim of Haitian Earthquake by Jack Brymer

Lt. Col. Kenneth Bourland received his commission as a "distinguished graduate" of Samford University's Air Force ROTC program in 1995. A veteran of the wars in Iraq and Desert Storm, Bourland was stationed in Miami, Fla., on assignment to the United States Southern Command as Caribbean desk officer with general and supervisory duties in the partnership with 13 Caribbean countries. Unfortunately, he was in a room on the second floor of Hotel Montana and was killed Jan. 12, 2010, when a disastrous earthquake struck Haiti.

A native of Birmingham, Bourland graduated from Huffman High School and earned his baccalaureate degree from the University of Alabama at Birmingham, which is affiliated with Samford's AFROTC program. He later earned a master's degree from the U.S. Navy Post-Graduate School in Monterey, Calif.

His widow, Peggy, has established a scholarship at Samford in her late husband's honor. While it is primarily for AFROTC students, the scholarship's secondary recipients can be students in Ida V. Moffett School of Nursing. Peggy, who has a nursing degree from Wallace State College in Hanceville, Ala., said she "had always dreamed of attending the Moffett School of Nursing."

A native of Gardendale, Ala., Peggy said she wanted to do something so people would not forget Kenneth. "He was a wonderful man, amazing leader in the military and exemplified an Air Force officer through his service to others," she said. "He was a dedicated, passionate officer."

As for the scholarship possibly going to a nursing student, she said, "If I can help a young student get a nursing degree from a great school who may not be able to do so financially, that is what I want to do."

Peggy wanted to make sure she could provide the scholarship financially and to make the awarding of the scholarship an annual event whether it goes to an Air Force cadet or nursing student. She was present when the first award was made in April.

She and Kenneth, who was 37 years old at his death, met in 2003 while she was a surgical nurse at St. Vincent's Hospital in Birmingham and he was stationed in North Dakota. A surgeon at St. Vincent's was dating Kenneth's sister and arranged a blind date for the two to meet.

They have two children: Charles, 4, and Andrew, 2½. ■

Dobbins Family Legacy Lives on Through Scholarship

by Mary Wimberley

A son's wish to honor his father's memory and provide scholarships for Samford students has stood a span of time to inspire a new generation of givers and grateful recipients.

This story begins in the 1980s, when longtime Samford English professor and department chair Dr. Austin Dobbins established the Gaines S. Dobbins English Scholarship Fund in memory of his deceased father.

"My father was deeply devoted to my grandfather, and I'm sure the scholarship was a way to honor his memory, as well as provide needed scholarship money for Samford students," explained Austin Dobbins' daughter, Betsy Dobbins Fleenor of Birmingham.

Dr. Gaines Dobbins, who died in 1978, was a well-known and respected educator at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. A professor of church efficiency and Sunday school pedagogy at the seminary from 1920 to 1956, he was considered a pioneer in the field of church growth.

Austin Dobbins taught English at Samford from 1950 until 1985, serving as chair from 1957 until 1979. A specialist in Milton, Shakespeare and Chaucer, he is remembered as an inspiring but demanding teacher whose high expectations epitomized the high standards of the department. He was the author of the highly regarded 1975 book, Milton and the Book of Revelation: The Heavenly Cycle.

After he died in 2006 and his wife, Mary, died in 2010, their children chose to rename the fund The Dobbins English Scholarship Fund.

"It seemed only appropriate to include their names in recognition of their many years of service," said Fleenor of the decision to honor her parents' memory.

Her father's entire academic career was at Samford, and her mother was his able supporter, a participant in the faculty women's auxiliary and a teacher in the Samford extension division, notes Fleenor.

The couple, who were married for 59 years, lived very frugally in order to ensure their retirement and care needs, as well as to pass on a legacy to Fleenor and her sister, Ginger Dobbins Howell, of New Orleans, La.

"We wanted to increase the scholarship fund to honor their memory, to extend their generosity to a cause they loved, and to provide a way for family, friends, former students and faculty colleagues to honor them," said Fleenor, who with her husband, Dr. Michael Fleenor, made gifts during 2010–11 that double the original fund value, which now exceeds $100,000.

She hopes that by increasing the fund's value and broadening the scholarship parameters to include English majors at all class levels, not just seniors as originally stipulated, it will be of more benefit to students.

"The increase in funding reinforces our belief in the significance of English literature and writing as a career choice, and as an adjunct to an array of other fields," said Fleenor, a 1978 Samford graduate who studied Chaucer and Shakespeare with her dad. "He was an excellent teacher, and I'm very glad I had the opportunity to see him doing what he loved."

To date, dozens of Samford English literature majors have benefited from Dobbins scholarships, which were and are still based on merits of academic achievement, character and worthiness.

Valerie Westmark, a senior English literature major from Pensacola, Fla., is one of the more recent recipients.

Westmark sees the scholarship as a great honor and reward. "It demonstrates to me that Samford and the entire English department notice and recognize students' hard work and initiative to make the most of their education," said Westmark, an aspiring poet who is enrolled in the creative writing concentration. She hopes to use her English skills in a helping profession, perhaps in grant writing or another area at a nonprofit organization.

Odds are that all of the fund's namesakes would be proud. ■

To assist more English majors, gifts may be designated to The Dobbins Scholarship Fund, Office of University Advancement, Samford University, 800 Lakeshore Drive, Birmingham, AL 35229.

Bumpers' Generosity Leads to Lifetime Giving Society

by Mary Wimberley

Bennie Bumpers recalls the time he and his wife, Sonja, made a gift to the Samford University Auxiliary general scholarship fund. "Someone from Samford called, saying that they were short in funding a scholarship for a deserving student, and would we consider redesignating our gift for that purpose," Bumpers said.

The couple didn't think twice before agreeing to the development officer's request. It is reassuring, says Bumpers, to know that if there is a particular need, every effort is made to direct gifts in the best direction.

"I have full trust and confidence in the people at Samford," he said. "Everyone has students as their priority."

The 1963 graduate recalls feeling that same student-oriented quality about Samford when he was a business major and Sonja was a sociology major. It likely played a large part in their qualifying for a new distinction: they are among several Samford friends who this year became members of the Harwell G. Davis Society, which recognizes university donors whose lifetime contributions total $100,000 or more.

"It is just paying back what people did for us when we were students. Samford was what we needed for educational growth and maturity to make good career decisions," said Bumpers, who retired in 2007 as vice president of risk management at Vulcan Materials Company.

He credits his company's matching-gift program with enhancing their giving opportunities, and recommends the option to anyone whose employer offers it. "We could give a little, and the school could get a lot. The process is as simple as filling out a form," said Bumpers, who promoted matching gifts during his tenure with Sonja as 2003–04 copresidents of the Samford Alumni Association.

The couple's giving history reflects a trust that Samford will use their unrestricted donations where needed most, and also underscores their personal interest in specific areas such as athletics, the business school and library.

A good library benefits students campus-wide and is a key component in helping a Samford diploma be more valuable each year, believes Bumpers, who was a 2008 Alumnus of the Year.

Brock School of Business is near to Bumpers' heart on several levels. The late business dean Dr. William Geer was an inspiring professor and mentor who maintained contact with the Jackson, Ala., native after he graduated. Bumpers has acknowledged that bond with a gift to the Geer Scholarship Fund, and similarly recognizes the more recent leadership of Dr. Beck Taylor, who was dean from 2005 to 2010.

He is pleased that close student-faculty relationships exist today. "I see it in the business school now. Students know the professors and vice versa. They are tight," said Bumpers, who has served as a mentor and given guest lectures.

As a business school advisory board member, he exhorts anyone who serves on a board, or is in any way involved in a leadership role with the university, to set an example through giving.

One of his first major giving areas was athletics, which has given him many entertaining afternoons and evenings watching student-athletes compete in sports. "I would feel bad if we didn't give," he admitted, noting the extra dimension and national presence that an athletics program adds to an academic environment.

Overall, Bennie and Sonja see giving to Samford as an investment that pays rich dividends.

"People who give do so as an investment and want to see a return on that investment," said Bumpers, for whom value is a key determinant in his giving decisions. ■

Samford Athletics Has by Philip Poole Extraordinary Year

Finding the appropriate balance between academics and athletics is crucial at an institution such as Samford University, where academics are stressed but extracurricular and cocurricular activities are strongly encouraged.

The 2010–11 academic year was an unusual one for Samford athletics, with key leadership changes, new facilities and historic championships—all at the same time that Samford’s more than 300 student-athletes were excelling in the classroom.

“We talk often about the front doors of the university—the things that create a strong public awareness,” said Samford President Andrew Westmoreland, “and athletics create a positive front door for Samford with alumni, students, parents and the general public. I believe strongly that intercollegiate athletics are part of the total university experience, especially at a comprehensive school like Samford.”

But, athletics do not trump academics, Westmoreland emphasized. “That our student-athletes reflect the same high level of academic success as all our students is a testimony to their desire to get the kind of education that Samford provides and that, hopefully, will help to ensure their future success in life.”

Academic Achievements

Samford placed 26 student-athletes on the Southern Conference fall Academic All-Conference team and led all conference schools with 24 representatives on the winter 2011 Academic All-Conference team. Fifty student athletes won the Commissioner’s Medal by earning a 3.5 or higher grade point average. Football student-athlete Justin Sly posted a perfect 4.0 GPA.

The individual student honors reflect the importance of team efforts in the classroom. Samford’s 17 varsity teams posted an average score of 989 of 1000 in the NCAA’s Division 1 multiyear Academic Progress Report, with four teams—men’s and women’s golf, women’s cross-country, and women’s track and field—posting perfect multiyear scores of 1000.

“Our multiyear scores show that our student-athletes consistently have performed at a high level in the classroom over the last several years,” said Samford Athletics Director Martin Newton.

Zac Epperson, a senior mathematics major and track-and-field student-athlete, presented a paper entitled “Analytic Continuation of Factorial-Like Products” at the Southeastern annual meeting of the Mathematical Association of America.

Ina Ables from the women’s cross-country team received a Southern Conference graduate scholarship, one of eight student-athletes chosen for this award.

The individual and team honors also support the university’s strategic plan goal to “create and sustain an environment for learning and professional development.”

Championship Seasons

It was an historic year for Samford athletics teams in competition.

The women’s basketball team, which has existed for only 14 years, won its first-ever conference championship in 2011, defeating top-seed Appalachian State University in the finals of the conference tournament. The team was seeded 14th in the NCAA tournament and played Florida State University in a first-round game in Auburn, Ala. More than 500 Samford fans made the trip to support the team's historic accomplishment.

The women's cross-country team claimed its second straight Southern Conference title, and the men's tennis team won the conference championship and represented the conference in the NCAA regional tournament in Athens, Ga.

Three coaches also received honors. Golf coach Woodie Eubanks and men's track-and-field coach Rod Tiffin were named Southern Conference Coaches of the Year. Assistant baseball coach Mick Fieldbinder was named Assistant Coach of the Year by the Alabama Baseball Coaches Association.

New Leadership

Bob Roller, Samford's athletics director for 11 years, resigned in late 2010. In March, the university announced the hiring of Samford alumnus and former student-athlete Martin Newton as new director of athletics. Newton, the son of legendary coach C. M. Newton, had been the director of basketball operations at the University of Kentucky.

"Samford has always had a special place in my heart and helped shape me both personally and professionally," Newton said at the time of his hiring. "I share Dr. Westmoreland's vision for this university and our athletics department, and I look forward to serving our student-athletes, coaches, faculty and staff as we continue to move Samford athletics to the next level."

Roller oversaw extensive expansion of athletics facilities and programs, and led an impressive era of athletics fund-raising.

New Facilities

The new Samford Track and Soccer Stadium (above) opened in April, just in time for the university to host the 2011 Southern Conference track-and-field championships.

The complex, which includes a nine-lane track with a regulation soccer field inside the track, is located just across Lakeshore Drive from the campus. The complex has a seating capacity of 1,200. A 5,000-square-foot support building houses concessions, ticket booths, restrooms, storage and locker rooms.

It is the latest athletics expansion that has led Samford to have some of the best facilities in the Southern Conference, Newton noted.

With the opening of the Samford Track and Soccer Stadium, areas around the former soccer field were renovated and expanded into student recreation facilities that opened in late August. ■

CIRCLE OF PROGRESS SOCIETIES

Living donors in cumulative giving societies have made significant gifts to Samford University during their lives and embody the Samford mission to “nurture persons for God, for learning, forever.” These friends and alumni have made contributions totaling at least $100,000 that extend beyond the confines of any single fiscal year. New members of the societies as of June 30, 2011, are highlighted in bold.

- Samuel Sterling Sherman Society ($1,000,000+)
- Lovelace-Wilkerson Society ($500,000–$999,999)
- A. P. Montague Society ($250,000–$499,999)
- Harwell G. Davis Society ($100,000–$249,999)

ANNUAL GIVING LEADERSHIP SOCIETIES

An annual gift provides support for Samford University and its comprehensive mission to offer quality education in a supportive environment with basic Christian values. Participation at any level gives you, the donor, an opportunity to establish a partnership with virtually every faculty member and student in each school or department of the university.

Your participation places you at the heart of Samford’s reason for being.

The life and work of every great institution is ultimately the result of the commitment and support of a company of friends who believe deeply in the mission of the institution, and who invest faithfully and generously in its work. Please consider investing in this institution and its future. Samford University appreciates your participation at any level.

- Howard Society ($10,000+)
- Chairman’s Society ($5,000–$9,999)
- President’s Society ($1,000–$4,999)
- Sherman Oak Society ($500–$999)
- Century Society ($100–$499)
- 1841 Society ($1–$99)

For fiscal year 2010–2011, there are 2,502 members of the 1841 Society who are not listed in this publication but whose donations have totaled $87,712. These gifts allow Samford to provide a distinct experience to a new generation of students, ensure the improvement of all Samford programs and departments, and garner increased national rankings that, in turn, increase the value of a Samford degree.

The gifts recognized on the following pages were received between July 1, 2010, and June 30, 2011, and are based on the donor’s status at the time of the gift.

A. P. MONTAGUE SOCIETY

A. P. Montague, president of the college from 1902 to 1912, emphasized the distinctiveness of a school unafraid to address the improvement of the whole person—mind, body and spirit. The A. P. Montague Society honors those who have given in support of Samford's distinctive mission.

HARWELL G. DAVIS SOCIETY

Major Harwell Goodwin Davis served as president of the college during one of the most critical periods in its history—through the aftermath of the Great Depression and the effects of World War II to the relocation from East Lake to Homewood. Thanks to his creativity, courage and vision, the school not only survived, but thrived. The Harwell Goodwin Davis Society honors those who take up Davis' challenge of continual progress at Samford.

Alumni

Samford is particularly proud of alumni who support the university. For alumni, one star (*) after a name represents 5-9 years of cumulative giving, two stars (**) represents 10-19 years of cumulative giving, and three stars (***) represents 20+ years of cumulative giving. When (L) follows a name, it represents a Law graduating class; (P) denotes Pharmacy; and (D) represents divinity. A class year after one of those letters indicates a subsequent degree conferred that year for the corresponding specialty.

DeVotie Legacy Society

The DeVotie Legacy Society memorializes Samford University's indebtedness to James H. DeVotie, one of the founding trustees for Howard College in 1841. DeVotie was instrumental in raising funds to buy the land for the new college. It is that passion for the Samford mission and the commitment to Christian higher education in Alabama that is exemplified by those individuals who have made Samford a part of their estate plan.

A sold-out Avett Brothers concert on campus turned into a benefit for victims of April's devastating tornadoes, with attendees bringing items to be distributed and a live auction that included a guitar signed by the popular group.

TRUSTEES

Samford University is governed by a board of trustees that provides policy oversight for the university and is responsible for electing the university's president when a vacancy occurs. The members are nominated by a trustee committee and elected by the board. Trustees must be members of an Alabama Baptist church that cooperates with the Alabama Baptist State Convention. Through a covenant agreement with the Alabama Baptist State Convention [ABSC], Samford's trustees are affirmed by messengers to the ABSC annual meeting. The executive director and elected president of the ABSC serve as nonvoting, ex officio members of Samford's board of trustees. Trustees with meritorious and at least 20 years of service as a trustee may, upon recommendation of the president and nominating committee, be designated as life trustees.
